JANE ADDAMS' HULL-HOUSE CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION AT UIC

The centennial observance of the founding of Jane Addams' Hull-House continues to be observed at the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) through June 1990 with seminars, films, theater programs, music lectures, and exhibitions.

Hull-House, founded in 1889 by Jane Addams and Ellen Gates Starr, influenced the development of urban America through social welfare policy, urban investigations, educational reform, politics, public health programs, labor relations, international affairs, and the arts.

The Jane Addams Hull House Museum, located on the UIC campus, is a permanent memorial to Addams, her innovative settlement house programs, and the people they served. Owned and operated by UIC, the two-building complex is a National Historic Landmark and a City of Chicago Landmark.

About Jane Addams

Born in Cedarville, Illinois, September 6, 1860, Jane Addams graduated from Rockford College in 1882. In 1889 she joined with her friend from college, Ellen Gates Starr, in founding Chicago's first settlement house, Hull-House, on the city's Near West Side. From this point until her death in 1935, Jane Addams developed a reputation as the country's most influential woman, becoming a spokesperson for many social issues that emerged out of the context of an evolving urban industrial nation.

A founder of the Chicago Federation of Settlements in 1894, Addams was also one of the founders of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in 1910 and the American Civil Liberties Union in 1920. A leader in the National Consumers League, she served as the first woman president of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections and on the Chicago Public School Board from 1905 to 1908. In addition, she was a leader in the drive for women's suffrage.

Author of eleven books and many hundreds of articles, Addams communicated her ideas to a wide audience through her writings and public speaking. During the First World War, Jane Addams became a leader in the peace movement, becoming an important advocate of internationalism. In 1915 she became chairman of the Women's Peace Party meeting at the Hague, and in 1919 founded the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. In recognition of her work for world peace, Jane Addams was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1931, becoming the first American woman to receive this honor.
